S. hlaswig, if they han free vote express, a wieli to be united to Donmark, shall be cededto Denmark accordingly." It has been angrested we know not on what anthority-that this cons mion to the principle of nationality, was made by the two Gornton Powers at the excest instance of the representative of the French Emperor at Prapue. It is, nevertheless by no means impossible, that such an not of tariy and sounts, yet not preacceptable, justice to Denmark may have occured spontaneous'y to Count Bamark's mind. The formule of wir had given him so much more than in hir wildest droams he could ei her have h med for or aspired to, that it was natural for him to wish to compound with his own conscience and to dis irm the envy of the world .- He acted in abedience to the feeling by which a grapher who has brok a the hank at Hamburg or Baden is prompted to ding his gold pieges among the writers and posters at the door of the Convireition Silcon. It is not exactly almagiving ; it is only naving tithen to the totalar dity of the n'nes where his fortune was made.
